Applied Engineering Team Presented With 2008 EEA Grand Award

Applied Engineering Services, along with sub consultants Fink, Roberts & Petrie and Browning Day Mullins Dierdorf Architects, won the "Grand Project" award for engineering excellence at the 20th Annual ACEC Indiana EEA Banquet held March 2nd at the Indianapolis Marriott North Hotel. The award was made in recognition of the design work for a major expansion of the Knauf Insulation Plant in Shelbyville, Indiana. Final construction was completed the fall of 2007 and total cost of the project was $240 million.

Only one Grand Project award is made each year by ACEC Indiana to recognize an outstanding engineering achievement that demonstrates a high degree of merit and ingenuity.

Emotional Intelligence: Lunch & Learn Program with Ingrid Cummings

Would you like to know how to hire the right people, deal effectively with your clients and be more successful?

If you answered "yes" then you will want to attend this informative lunch & learn session on Emotional Intelligence Quotient (EQ) on May 13th.

What is EQ? "The capacity to effectively recognize and manage your emotions and those of others."

Studies have shown a lack of

EQ is the main reason promising careers derail, while a critical level of it is the #1 reason successful leaders, managers and sales people outperform the average.

ACEC's Engineering, Inc. recently listed EQ as one of the top 5 ways to enhance your employee recruitment & retention initiatives.

It takes more than just IQ these days!
